

Four Donations Increase Fund

A DINNER meeting of the East Stroudsburg Businessmen Assn. at Lone Pine Inn last night resulted in two additional $100 contributions to the industrial development fund of Monroe County Industries, Inc., bringing the day's total to $400.

The drive has now reached $7,925 of its $15,000 goal. Contributions at the dinner, at which Montgomery F. Crowe, president of the industrial group, outlined its plans, were Don Heller, East Stroudsburg clothier, and State Rep. Hanford L. Cleveland.

Earlier in the day, $100 contributions were received from Arlington W. and Edward J. Williams, attorneys, and Jess F. Haynes of Haynes Motors.

No Giveaway
J. Horace Strunk, executive secretary of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce yesterday reminded potential donors that there is no plan to give the plot of land in which two industries have shown interest away.

Strunk pointed out that while the drive was first conceived as the plan called for Monroe County Industries to purchase the land and sell it to the two firms.

The money received from the sale would then be placed in a special fund which would be used to purchase other industry sites as needed or as outside firms show interest in them.

Prospective donors are urged to make their checks payable to the Chamber of Commerce and mail or deliver them to the chamber offices at 723 Main St.

Arms Talks To Recess

LONDON, Sept. 5 (U)—The U.N. Disarmament subcommittee tonight agreed unanimously to recess its London talks without reaching an arms-reduction agreement.

The five-power subcommittee talked for an hour and failed to agree on the question of when to meet again to take up the disarmament problem. But it scheduled another meeting tomorrow to try to settle this question.

Today's meeting, the 70th since the session opened in London March 18 and the 156th since the subcommittee was formed in 1945, wound up on a note of bitterness.

The Western Powers—the United States, Britain, Canada and France—suggested that the subcommittee meet again at the United Nations on Oct. 1.

Zarin Protest
Soviet delegate Valerian Zarin agreed to the proposal for an immediate recess. But he protested that no time or place for the next meeting should be fixed until after the entire question of disarmament has been fought out in the U.N. General Assembly.

When Western spokesmen objected that this might mean the loss of valuable time for negotiations, Zarin charged the West was seeking to avoid a debate on disarmament in the General Assembly.

Spokesmen for Britain and France sharply denied Zarin's accusation. The United States already has moved that the question of disarmament be discussed during the General Assembly session which begins Sept. 17.

Hoffa Denies Wrongdoing

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (U)—James R. Hoffa and other Teamsters Union bosses today denied before the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee any wrongdoing in connection with corruption charges leveled by the Senate Rackets Committee.

Most of the closed hearing before the AFL-CIO's five-man Rackets-policing group was devoted to hearing Hoffa's written and oral explanation of the Senate committee's charges that he accepted favors from employers and consorted with racketeers.

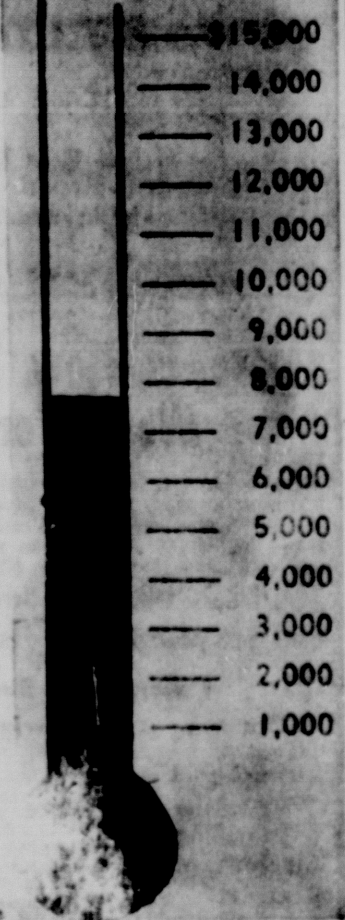

Hoffa declined to make public his own statement, telling newsmen it was "confidential."

As for the AFL-CIO's charges that the Teamsters Union is corruptly dominated by Vice President Hoffa, national President Dave Beck and others, a public statement was issued on which none of the Teamsters would elaborate.

Ouster Possible
This statement denied the corruption-domination charge—one that could lead to ousting the Teamsters from the AFL-CIO if sustained.

The statement said any necessary remedial steps in the union of punishment of its officials would be carried out at the Sept. 30 convention of the 1½-million-member truckers' union in Miami, Fla.

Hoffa is the odds-on choice to become Teamsters president at the convention, succeeding Beck, who is retiring. Beck has been accused by the Senate committee, head by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), of helping himself to union funds, while Hoffa has been charged with using racketeers to advance his own powers.

ANOTHER $400 — The industrial development fund of Monroe County Industries, Inc., reached $7,925 yesterday with four new $100 contributions. Goal of the campaign is $15,000.

Girard Used Rifle That Killed Lady

MAEBAH, Japan, Sept. 6 (U)—A U. S. Army rifle and grenade launcher were brought into a Japanese courtroom here today and GI William S. Girard acknowledged using both the day a Japanese woman died on a firing range.

The prosecution contends that an empty cartridge case fired from the grenade launcher killed Mrs. Naka Sakai last Jan. 30. The rifle rested on a table throughout the morning session. In front of the three black-robed judges.

"Did you use this rifle the day of the unfortunate incident?" asked presiding Judge Yuko Kawachi.

"Yes sir," Girard replied. "Was the grenade launcher attached?"

"Yes sir."

Rain Hits Crowd
A drizzling rain cut to a scattering of the throngs which had jammed around the drab stucco court building when the sensational trial opened Aug. 26.

Today's session was the first of three, the prelude to moving tomorrow to the hillside military firing range where a shot from Girard's grenade launcher killed 46-year-old Mrs. Sakai.

Girard was guarding a machine gun at the time. He has denied he fired wilfully at Japanese scrap collectors on the range.

The opening session was occupied with a long argument over the right of a Japanese court to try Girard. The U.S. Supreme Court handed the case over to the Japanese courts.

U. S. Steps Up Arms Aid To Middle East

Syrian Crisis Prompts U.S. To Take Step

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (U)—The United States, meeting to ominous reports from the Middle East, has decided to airlift offensive weapons to Jordan and expedite arms deliveries to Lebanon, Iraq and Turkey.

All these countries are neighbors of Red-penetrated Syria. The Syrian situation was described as extremely serious yesterday by Loy W. Henderson, deputy under-secretary of state.

In a series of swift moves today, the State Department indicated the United States might implement President Eisenhower's Middle East policy with further measures.

Leaders To Confer
Secretary of State Dulles arranged to confer with Eisenhower in Washington on Saturday.

The weapons going in will be part of 10 million dollars worth of military aid promised Jordan's King Hussein under the New Middle East policy adopted last March.

It was made plain here that the speedup is intended to reassure Syria's neighbors of American determination to help them maintain their independence in the face of any Communist threats.

In announcing the Eisenhower-Dulles meeting, the State Department said it was based on "deep concern" that Syria might become "a victim of international communism."

Nations Alarmed
In San Mateo, Calif., Sen. William F. Knowland R-Calif., Senate minority leader, said non-Communist nations of the Middle East are concerned by the developments in Syria.

"These nations are alarmed that their vital interests and security may be endangered by a communist supported regime in Syria," Knowland said.

"We will, I believe, help to strengthen our friends in that vital area of the world to offset the build-up of communist equipment currently taking place in Syria."

Prelim Winners Announced In Beauty Contest

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 5 (U)—Miss Indiana and Miss Georgia walked off with the honors tonight in the second preliminary competition of the Miss America pageant.

Gloria Ruth Rupprecht, 19-year-old sophomore at Valparaiso University, won the talent competition with her impression of a singer making her first appearance before an audience.

The swim suit winner was Jody Elizabeth Shattuck, 20-year-old blonde from Atlanta, Ga.

Health Board Members' Resignations Not Linked To Relations With Council

DIFFERENCES of opinion between East Stroudsburg Borough Council and members of the board of health had no bearing on resignation of four members of the latter body, A. D. Jacoby said last night.

Jacoby, former president of the board of health, said that at the meeting of the board at which the resignations were accepted, "There was no talk of council at all."

Jacoby said that Borough Health Officer Ernest Younklin submitted his resignation first, "of his own free will and accord" citing personal reasons for the action.

Board Secretary Wesley R. Mosteller said that under the present arrangement he was suffering a monetary loss by attending board meetings, in submitting his resignation.

Board Member Joseph Andrews submitted his resignation due to the pressure of personal business, Jacoby reported.

Jacoby said his own resignation had been under consideration for some time.

No Sewer Plans
"As far as I can see, there's going to be no attempt, at any time, to put in a new sanitary sewer system for the borough," Jacoby said.

"I consider this a flagrant violation of state health laws and prefer not to be a member of a board which has to sit back and allow such a condition to exist because apparently nothing can be done about it."

Jacoby emphasized that there was no implied criticism of borough council in the latter statement.

"The board of health and council get along all right," he said. "They can only go so far."

Drug Ring Leader Held

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (U)—Harry Stromberg, alias Nig Rosen, New York ex-convict alleged to have masterminded an international narcotics ring which netted up to $20 million a year, surrendered to authorities here today.

A roundup of 62 persons named in a federal indictment continued. Stromberg, 54, showed up at the office of U. S. Atty. Paul W. Williams as he promised he would do. The arrangement was made last night through Stromberg's attorney after federal agents searched for him unsuccessfully.

Shortly after Stromberg surrendered, Henry Teitelbaum of the Bronx, alleged second-in-command of the huge dope ring, gave himself up.

Pleaded Innocent
Both pleaded innocent when arraigned before U. S. Judge Edward Weinfeld. Stromberg was released in $20,000 bail. Teitelbaum's bail was set at $10,000.

Forty-six persons were named defendants and 16 co-conspirators in the indictment unsealed yesterday in Federal Court here. They are accused of smuggling big and expensive quantities of heroin, opium and cocaine through the port of New York from France and other countries.

Stromberg came to this country, from Russia as a young man. He has a long record of crime here, including burglary and prohibition convictions. He operated in Philadelphia during the prohibition era.

General Sessions Judge James A. Mullen also fined each of the three $1,000. They were charged with conspiracy and bribery in obtaining $10,000 from two electroplating companies.

Windsock Hat

LONDON, Sept. 5 (U)—The British hat people this week unveiled what they call the windsock to go with a lady's fall ensemble known as the sack. The windsock is named for a venerable wind direction indicator that first flew over airfields in the days when men flew by the seats of their pants.

Gas Rates Boosted

HARRISBURG, Sept. 5 (U)—Four western Pennsylvania firms today received Public Utility Commission authorization to boost their rates a total $2,449,000 a year effective immediately to offset wholesale gas price boosts.

THE LADY AND THE FLOWER—For the first time in three years a night-blooming cactus (cactus) plant bloomed this week at Stroudsburg Restaurant. Here owner Mrs. Mary Gialouris looks admiringly at the huge blossom. Cereus plants bloom only at night. Blossoms last only a brief time. The blossom aroused considerable comment and interest among shoppers and passersby Wednesday night and yesterday at the cafe.

Cereus Finally Blooms

By Leonard Randolph
NOW HUSH! This is a cactus story!

Puns notwithstanding, a small but avidly interested group of us botanical-odds fanatics got together Wednesday night at the Stroudsburg Restaurant.

There were William Gialouris and his wife, Mary, and their young daughter Evangelina. They own and manage the restaurant.

Then there was George Stoeckel, local jeweler. He was armed with a 35-mm color camera. Mrs. Bill Quick stopped in for a couple of minutes.

Our man Rod MacLeod was around (see accompanying photo). We were all looking at a rather disgruntled-looking cactus-type plant in the window.

It looked like most other cacti, except maybe not quite so prickly. Its main stem was held almost upright in the earthenware pot by a wooden stick to which the plant's spine was attached. The green, glossy leaves flopped loosely on all sides.

From one of these leaves there was suspended an out-sized flower of such tremendous dimension that it made the rest of the plant seem small and out of place by comparison.

The blossom had been there, in its full white and pink-hued glory since 8 p.m., Mary Gialouris said. There was a touch of pride and more than a hint of amazement in Mary's voice as she looked at the flower and talked about it.

Why? Well, it's like this. The plant in the window was something called "Selenicereus grandiflorus". On the other hand it may have been either a "Peniocereus greggii" or "Hylocereus undatus", none of us were quite sure which. We were absolutely certain it was a "cereus" plant of some kind.

Mary said she was absolutely sure of one other thing. That it was called a "night-blooming cactus" no matter what its technical name was. And that it only bloomed at night. And this was the first time it had bloomed in the three years they've had it. (Please Turn to Page Three)

U. S. Lifts Travel Ban To Bulgaria

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (U)—The United States today lifted its seven-year-old ban on all travel by Americans to Red Bulgaria.

At least three factors apparently lay behind the policy reversal announced by the State Department:

1. Both the United States and Bulgaria are searching for some way to resume diplomatic relations suspended Feb. 21, 1950.

2. Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympics Committee, told the department it would be ridiculous if the Soviet Union kept him from going to Sofia for a committee meeting Sept. 30.

3. The easing of the prohibition on American travel to Red China, announced exactly two weeks ago, set a precedent.

Luther Reid, State Department press officer made the announcement.

He told a news conference passport valid for travel to Bulgaria had been issued to Brundage, six other American Olympics officials, and Harvey Hudson, Associated Press staff reporter in Paris who was assigned to cover the Sofia session.

Good Morning!

The man phoned the mental hospital to ask if any man had escaped.

"No," said a doctor.

"Why?"

"Well," replied the caller, "I just wondered . . . somebody has just run off with my wife."

Integration At A Glance

By The Associated Press
NEWPORT, R.I.—President Eisenhower tells Arkansas governor in telegram from his vacation headquarters that he will use every legal means at his command to uphold the U.S. Constitution in the Little Rock school integration controversy.

Eisenhower plans to interrupt his vacation Saturday and return to Washington for a conference with Atty. Gen. Brownell on the matter.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—Little Rock School Board reverses its stand and asks U.S. District Court to suspend its order to integrate. Growing crowd surrounds all-white Central High School Thursday, but nine Negro pupils stay home after being blocked by National Guardsmen previous day.

Militia warns newsmen against "inciting" activities. Gov. Orval Faubus remains silent in militia-guarded mansion after he charged, and Eisenhower denied, plot to arrest him.

MARYVILLE, Tenn.—Five Negroes turned away from all-white Maryville High School by Principal J.P. Stewart, who told them: "Under instructions I have there will be no integration of Maryville schools this year."

DALLAS, Tex.—Federal judge reluctantly orders Dallas Schools to integrate at midterms after Christmas holidays. Says order is difficult but it is his duty after higher court overrules him.

ARLINGTON, Va.—School officials cite controversial pupil assembly in fact refusing attempts by eight Negroes to enroll in four white high schools.

STURGIS, Ky.—Eighteen Negroes attend classes for third day amid heckling and catcalls from small crowd.

MINNAPOLIS - SALEM, N. C.—Fifteen-year-old Negro girl bypasses crowd of 500 at front entrance of school and attends class without incident.

EASTON, Md.—Eight Negroes attend two white schools. Two whites arrested for picketing, another for profanity.

LAKE CHARLES, La.—Negroes boycott distant school trying to gain admittance to nearby white school.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 5 (U)—A brisk wind and dozens of deep sand traps gave President Eisenhower a tough time today in playing his first round of vacation golf at the Newport Country Club.

"Too many traps," the President moaned at the halfway point of an 18-hole round at the exclusive course on Narragansett Bay.

The day was brilliantly clear with warm sun glinting off the blue water, but the wind was a real headache for Eisenhower and just about every other golfer playing the course, which was founded in 1893.

"I don't even know whether I can stand up in this wind, let alone hit the ball," the President muttered at one point.

After the round, Eisenhower complained that he had played "very poorly" and he said with a grin regarding his score: "Let's not talk about it in public."

But the President and his partner, club pro Norman Panlter, did defeat their opponents.

Constitution Supports U.S. In Race Rift

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 5 (U)—President Eisenhower today advised Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus "the federal Constitution will be upheld by me by every legal means at my command" in dealing with the Little Rock school integration case.

And the President's headquarters here announced he will interrupt his vacation Saturday to return to Washington for a White House conference then with Atty. Gen. Brownell regarding the tense situation in Little Rock. Eisenhower also plans to confer there with other officials on other matters — including the situation in Syria — and intends to fly back to Newport Saturday evening.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 5 (U)—The Little Rock School Board asked U.S. District Court today to permit an indefinite legal postponement of integration at the strife-ridden Central High School, still encircled by armed National Guardsmen.

The request mentioned the tension that has engulfed this city since Gov. Orval Faubus ordered the guardsmen to prevent nine Negro students from entering the previously all-white school.

The surprise move by the board, which has supported its limited plan against Faubus' interference, apparently was aimed at breaking the impasse between Faubus and the federal government.

Temporary Truce

The plea, if granted by U.S. Dist. Judge Ronald L. Davies, could effect a temporary truce in the smouldering integration question here.

The board did not specify how long a postponement it wanted. Judge Davies set the hearing at 10 a.m. Saturday. Dist. Clerk Grady Miller said late today.

Faubus was not immediately available for comment. He has not been available all day.

Mrs. L.C. Bates, president of the Arkansas National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People said, "Our attorneys will naturally oppose it."

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower replied from Newport, R.I., to Faubus' long telegram last night. The governor said he feared federal officers were plotting to take him into custody. He asked the President to halt federal interference with his efforts "to maintain peace."

The President replied simply that "the federal Constitution will be upheld by me by every legal means at my command," in the Little Rock school controversy. Earlier he had denied that there was any plan for federal officers to attempt to arrest the Arkansas governor.

Eisenhower expressed confidence that Faubus would "give full cooperation to the United States District Court" in Little Rock. It was this court that ordered immediate integration.

Negro students stayed away from Central High School today on advice of the NAACP while the biggest crowd of the week turned out to back up National Guardsmen who have orders to bar Negroes from the institution.

The crowd of 700, obviously segregationist, cheered when the National Guard stopped one reporter from obtaining interviews from the demonstrators.

U. S. Atty. Osro Cobb called some Little Rock leaders to separate conferences today. The first ones called were Mayor Woodrow Mann and the school superintendent, Virgil T. Blossom.

Blossom spent 15 minutes with Cobb. Neither would discuss the meeting. Blossom did say the nine Negro children are "free to go back to Horace Mann (an all-Negro school). It is open to them. But it is up to the court to advise them what to do."

Judge Davies earlier told Cobb to investigate as to why his integration order was not carried out. Today, Mrs. Bates said: "We wouldn't send those kids out there again in this situation. I knew the crowd would be larger and noisier today."

Asked if the NAACP would advise Negroes to seek entry some other day, Mrs. Bates said, "Things are changing every hour. I can speak only of today. I have confidence the (federal) government will work this thing out and we're just waiting."

Camps Close Fine Season At Banquets

BLUE MOUNTAIN Camps recently completed their 37th season with two banquets, one at the boys' camp and the other at the girls' camp, a mile apart on opposite sides of the private Blue Mountain Lake.

Theme for the banquet was "Around the Camp in 60 Days" with the theme carried out in decorations inside and outside the dining halls and in songs, dances, baton twirling and band music on the program.

Highlights of the season were reviewed by Morris J. Escoll, founder of the camp, and his daughter, Martha Laurel Lubeck.

Mr. and Mrs. Lubeck are new junior directors of the camp, assisting Mr. and Mrs. Escoll in conducting camp business throughout the year.

Successful Season
Escoll described the season as "terrific" in all respects—land and water sports, hobbies, entertainment, food, fun and fellowship.

He said many of the children showed remarkable gains in health, weight and physical development and added that "all enjoyed and benefited from the fine weather of the past summer and wonderful climate of the Pocono Mountains."

Guests at the boys' banquet included the families of the men and women who live near the camp and who, in many cases, work there throughout the year.

They included Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lord, Mr. and Mrs. Emery Lord Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Crowe

Cramer, Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Heeter, Miss Mildred Kaul and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moyer.

Guests of honor at the girls' banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery F. Crowe, of Stroudsburg.

In presenting them to the campers and counselors, Escoll pointed out that the former state senator and Mrs. Crowe traveled around the world last year, recently returned from Alaska and that it was particularly appropriate to have them at a travel-type banquet.

Theme for the banquet was adapted from the motion picture, "Around the World in 80 days."

Nearly 1,100 Enrolled For Opening Of Teachers College Today

283 Freshmen Registered For Semester

CLASSES go into full session this morning at State Teachers College.

An estimated 1,063 students are registered so far, according to Dr. Francis B. McGarry, dean of instruction. Enrollment is expected to rise to nearly 1,100 for the new college year.

Dr. McGarry said last night that a total of 283 freshmen were registered on Wednesday. Yesterday's registration of upperclassmen netted another 780 students.

Still to come in are late registrations from students who have been detained due to illness, by their jobs or for other excused delays. Monday will be the final deadline for these late registrations.

Fresh Beanie
Familiar figures on campus this week—and on streets of the twin boroughs—are the freshmen girls wearing traditional "beanies." Many female members of the incoming class are billeted at the Indian Queen Hotel in Stroudsburg.

College officials said registration went "smoothly" this year and that classroom schedules and lecture hall arrangements have been set up to make maximum use of available space on campus.

The local college is in the preliminary stage of a new building program which will give it an additional administration building and library, a new science hall and a new women's dormitory. A Spring goal has been set for the projects.

Memorial Committee Meeting Set

MONROE County Joint Memorial Committee will meet Sunday at the VFW Post at 10 a. m.

This is the first meeting of the Fall-Winter session for the committee. All members are urged to attend.

The committee has been in operation for several years. It provides military services for veterans who have indicated a desire to have such rites included in their funeral ceremonies.

The memorial committee is made up of representatives from various veterans organizations in the county along with active and inactive military units. Servicemen who are not as yet members may join at the Sunday morning meeting.

James Upsets Chess Champ

AT THE REGULAR meeting of the Pocono Chess Club last night, Harold James, chief contender for the chess crown of Joseph Kushner, put the skids under the latter in a brilliantly contested Giuco Piano game.

By a clever sacrifice of a bishop in the middle game, James tied up Kushner's men in such an inextricable way they could offer no succor to the latter's monarch when James brought his big guns to bear on the position. Kushner resigned.

Sidney Kushner, however, salvaged family chess pride by smartly defeating Earl Weiss in two Queen's Pawn games.

Lou Mondelle lost one to John Price, club president and succeeded in drawing the second. John Slaboski, one of the younger members of the club defeated A. J. Vlossak in one game and lost two to the Mount Pocono expert. Rev. J. Hayes lost two of three to Vlossak. L. Boushell lost one to Weiss and drew one, while Ed Bossman stalemated one with Vlossak and defeated him in a second game.

The club president, Mr. Price, cordially invites all those interested in chess to attend the meetings of the group at the Pocono TV Relay Company office on Broad Street, any Thursday evening.

Phillipsburg Plant Closed By Walkout

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., Sept. 5 (AP)—The Ingersoll-Rand Co. plant remained closed today following yesterday's walkout of production and maintenance workers over the layoff of five forge employees.

Pickets paraded in front of the machinery plant which employs several thousand persons.

The employees are members of Local 5503, United Steel Workers of America, but the union has called the walkout unauthorized.

The strikers claim the five men laid off had seniority over three others in the forge who were retained. The company replied the five were not qualified to do the work of those retained.

A meeting of company and union officials last night failed to settle the controversy. No further meetings were scheduled.

Lady Ministers To Be Ordained

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Sept. 5 (AP)—The general synod of the Moravian Church agreed today to permit ordination of women ministers.

A resolution presented by the Committee on Doctrine saying that "in principle such ordination is permissible and may in certain cases be of great service to the Christian church," was accepted 20-11 by the delegates after debate.

Bishop Kenneth G. Hamilton of Bethlehem and the church's Northern Province declared, however: "The purpose of this recommendation is to permit a province to ordain women if it wishes to do so but as an exception to the general rule." The northern provincial synod voted earlier not to permit ordination of women.

Women Held In Slaying Of Husband

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 5 (AP)—A tired, ailing mother of two was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Cecil Krewson Jr. in Tunkhannock, Wyoming County, today on a general charge of homicide for the shooting of her husband Aug. 28 during a quarrel at their farm home near Beaumont.

Mrs. Norma Meeker, 32, R. D. 5, Tunkhannock suffering from a heart ailment is charged with killing her husband, Paul, 33, with one bullet from a 22-caliber rifle during an argument centered around the welfare of their 13-year-old daughter, Sheila.

Justice Krewson ordered her returned to Wyoming County Jail without bail after two witnesses, state police Sgt. Robert J. Lettner and Deputy County Coroner Ralph Sheldon testified. Sgt. Lettner quoted Mrs. Meeker as saying that all she knows is that during the argument she "pulled the trigger" and did not remember anything else until she found herself in the yard screaming "My husband is shot."

Bishop Kenneth G. Hamilton of Bethlehem and the church's Northern Province declared, however: "The purpose of this recommendation is to permit a province to ordain women if it wishes to do so but as an exception to the general rule." Cereus Finally Blooms

Three-Year Wait At End

There have been buds on the leaves before, Mary said, with that dark-eyed, warm and shy look on her face that comes when she begins to explain something to a group of people. But there had never been any full blossoms like this.

Early Wednesday, Mary said, she had begun to feel the plant was really going to bloom this time. "Bill kidded me about it. He told me I should take a blanket down (they live over the restaurant) and wait so I would be sure not to miss it," Mary said.

Then It Happened
"But look," she extended her hand toward the plant. "It happened already. You should have seen it about 7 o'clock. Then there was this long bloom but it wasn't opened. Then it begins to open and first thing you know at 8 o'clock it's open up big and full like this."

One of the women in the restaurant admired the flower again and said it was too bad it wouldn't last very long. Mary shook her head a little from side to side. The woman said: "Maybe you could have it made permanent. Like they put wax on flowers. Maybe you could do that."

Bill Gialouris came back in from the kitchen. He sat down at a rear table near the jukebox. "Ain't that something?" he asked with a grin. Everyone agreed it was.

Flashbulbs started popping and Mary Gialouris was forced to pose with the big flower a little against her will. The idea that her picture was going to be in a newspaper held no particular fascination for her at first. But once she was touching the giant flower with her fingers and inhaling the strong, exotic fragrance from it, she seemed to forget all about the ever-present camera.

Some more people stopped in from adjoining bars and restaurants. A casual passerby strolled up to the window, paused, cocked his head to one side and stared at the people inside the large pane of glass, then walked on.

MacLeod sat down at the counter with a heaped-up bowl of rice pudding and a cup of coffee before him. Couple of minutes later he glanced toward the window and said:

On Fast Time?
"Does that thing go on Standard or Daylight Saving?"

Reward with laughter, he returned to the pudding and the cup.

There was a lull in the conversation. The jukebox flickered to life and a male vocal group crooned: "Your kisses take me to Shaneri-La."

Someone walked out the door, letting it swing shut with a sudden shift of air. On the ledge of the window the huge petals of the night-blooming cereus nodded heavily in the fleeting wind.

Mary Gialouris looked at it again. She had waited three years for these few brief hours and there was a glow in her eyes as she watched the burden of the slender plant.

Evangeline switched the lights off in the restaurant. In the half-darkness the cereus blossom was even more beautiful than before. The leaves of the plant were absorbed in the gloom and the white flower was more evident and inescapable.

The vocal group wound up "Shaneri-La." But in the window of the restaurant there was still the occult remnant of the desert and the hungry jungle; the clinging perfume of another country in the natural order of things.

The Hotalen family was represented in force. Mrs. Edna Hotalen patronized the frolic with six of her seven sons, William, Floyd, Norman, Tom, Frank and Blase. Each of the first four boys have a number of children who attended.

Memory is a priceless possession. Preserve it permanently—visibly—beautifully in stone.

Help For Retarded

Pennsylvania has moved to relieve the pitiful problem of families with children who are mentally retarded, emotionally upset or otherwise unable to fit themselves into normal home and school life.

Despite the best and loving efforts of many parents, the burden was too much for them. Some fathers and mothers suffered physical and mental breakdowns.

But there was little that could be done. There were only two state schools—Pennhurst in Eastern Pennsylvania and Polk in the west—equipped to take care of these helpless children.

Family after family got the sad news—"no room, no room." The waiting list was about 3,000. Some years, as many as 800 applications were received.

Today things look brighter. The Legislature at its last session voted approval for more hospitals for retarded children. And the General State Authority has now provided for new hospitals at White Haven, Morgantown, Ebensburg and Philadelphia to take care of 2,712 children.

This should go a long way toward relieving the cruel pressure on present facilities. The new hospitals are expected to be ready within two to three years.

The newest turn of events is a happy victory for everyone who fought to provide adequate and decent care for these unfortunate children. And, as noted by the Pittsburgh Press, which has been in the forefront of the fight, life will soon be a little better for the afflicted children and their kin.

Turnabout In High School Study

In 1910, almost 57 per cent of all American high school students studied algebra. By 1952 the percentage had fallen to 24.6 per cent.

But there are signs that the trend, continuously downward for almost half a century, has been stopped. Between 1954 and 1956, for example, almost one third of the country's high school students got some math and algebra.

High school enrollment, of course, has soared in the past few years, so that there are now two million who are acquiring these basic needs of science and engineering, instead of the half-million of 1910.

There are still wide regional differences. These are most obvious, of course, in the smaller schools, though the tendency toward more science teaching is being felt even there.

But where math and science are taught, there is evidently a growing demand for them. Credit is given to scientific organizations and industry, which have been encouraging good minds to stay in teaching and produce a supply of future scientists, rather than luring them away.

There also is no doubt of inducement to the students in the cry for ever more scientific and technical manpower at good salaries.—Baltimore Sun

The Pennsylvania Story

State Tax Dollars

By Albert W. Johnson
House Majority Leader

Harrisburg—Five basic points stand out today like sore thumbs:

(1) The spenders in Pennsylvania's state government are laying out tax dollars on the line at an average rate of more than three million dollars per day;

(2) Total state spending in Pennsylvania amounts to over $350 per family unit each year;

(3) During the fiscal year which just ended, Pennsylvania had the largest state-tax dollar increase in the nation. The year saw the amount of money going into the state's tax coffers jump by 29 per cent;

(4) Over 700 million dollars is being poured into our highway system during the present biennium, and the Governor has at his disposal the greatest amount of money ever appropriated to a Pennsylvania Governor.

(5) The General Fund appropriation of 1.5 billion dollars is 500 million above that which existed in 1954 when the administration gained office through use of an "economy and no tax" campaign platform!

Despite facts, and truths recorded indelibly in the legislative journals, an expensive and clever effort is being made to convince people that they should be paying higher taxes, and that the political forces in power do not have enough money.

The Republican-led Legislature won the battle to fight off tax increases, and to properly allocate existing tax money. The value of this victory is being understood more clearly each day as we witness case after case of irresponsible waste and mismanagement.

The economical and business-like approach to handling public money by the Legislature is an achievement which is easily seen and understood. However, I believe that there is another of even greater importance.

In the 1957 session of the Legislature, we were able to strengthen the General Assembly as a law-making body elected to serve the people.

We were granted strong public support in the 1956 General Elections—support which enabled us to resist browbeatings, threats and tantrums from the Governor's Office. We were able to stand on our own feet, make our own clear decisions, and give the public its rightful "balance of power" in state government.

We entered the 1957 session with the shadow of a disgraceful 1955 session hanging over us. The 1955 session had dragged through 17 miserable months in which the Governor had tried to railroad through an assortment of schemes, including his discriminatory classified wage and income tax.

The people of this state wanted a Legislature with plain, old-fashioned courage and common sense. The Republican Party had the opportunity to fulfill its campaign pledge—and it did.

Despite the difficulty posed by a hostile administration, we succeeded in carrying out our goals as promised.

We balanced the budget. We held the line against new taxes.

We supplied record-breaking amounts of money to every department.

We drafted and passed a good legislative program of benefit to the people—but saw much of it killed by a Governor who arrogantly vetoed 119 measures.

We conducted a hard-working session—keeping it within a sensible six-month period.

We raised the prestige of the legislative process, and re-established the General Assembly's proper role in the democratic process of government.

We were granted strong public support in the 1956 General Elections—support which enabled us to resist browbeatings, threats and tantrums from the Governor's Office. A troubled wife sought the help of a psychiatrist. "It's my husband again," she sighed.

"Now he's going around telling everybody he's Henry the Eighth. Is that bad?"

"I wouldn't really start worrying," counseled the psychiatrist. "I'll be thinking you're Anne Boleyn!"

"It's true we need an assistant paying teller," conceded a small-town bank president. "But the man we want must be one who will never take the slightest risk."

"I'm just the one you're seeking," asserted the applicant. "And I'd like my first three months' salary in advance."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Newport's Headache

I recall going to Newport, Rhode Island, many years ago to visit Richard Washburn Child who was heading a group to rehabilitate this extraordinarily beautiful city which was suffering from the Depression and from the death of many millionaires, their heirs apparently not having the money to keep the magnificent estates going.

As a device, Newport instituted the Jazz Festival which attracted a crowd whose money is as good as anybody else's. But now Newport is to get a major gasoline installation and those who are not worried about their homes being covered by oil and soot are concerned lest they get a smog such as Los Angeles, once a health resort, now endures. The Navy has one of its principal bases at Newport and those who live there fear that the oil installation will imperil the city and the naval base.

An Advisory Commission of the Rhode Island Development Council, appointed by the Governor, reported to him last May on the advantages and disadvantages of the oil project. The principal advantage being that it would add a new and diversified industry to Rhode Island, employing 250 local people, and many more during the construction period.

The objections were numerous: "Detraction from scenic beauty of Narragansett Bay; water pollution and effect of high temperature of discharged water used for cooling purposes; air pollution; effect on recreation and marine life; lowering of fresh water table on mainland; constant stack flare from burning gases; possible adverse effect on present Naval installations and activities in the area and danger of the refinery's location causing the Navy not to expand the present facilities which it might otherwise do."

The Commission reported that the Navy employs over 10,000 civilians in the lower Narragansett Bay area and that the Navy would be discouraged from "... possible expansion of the civilian force of the Navy in the future. There is also to be considered the loss of business which would result from any lessening of the number of Navy ships visiting Rhode Island waters and the number of personnel coming ashore.

"Due to intensive Naval flying activity in the vicinity of the refinery there is always the possibility of an accident which could be serious. The Navy has made it very plain to us that the existence of a refinery at Jamestown would be incompatible with Naval operations in lower Narragansett Bay."

The Advisory Commission reported that the disadvantages outweigh the possible advantages of the scheme and that they oppose it. So far as has been made public, the oil installation is not a defense project but a private enterprise whose principal beneficiary is Gulf Oil. The refinery is being projected by the Commerce Oil Refining Corporation, a Delaware corporation, organized apparently for this purpose in 1955 by Harold M. Geller of Great Neck, Long Island, a lawyer, and Harry R. Lewis, neither of whom has any history in the oil refining industry.

The Jamestown Protective Association, which is opposing the project, in its communication to the Advisory Commission said:

"... The cost of the entire enterprise is to be paid for with borrowed capital ... the source of the capital, and the plans to obtain it, can't be disclosed. It is said that Lehman Brothers of New York have evolved the plans to create the capital. This is all we are told. Perhaps it is foreign capital. Who knows? But you can be certain that the source of the capital will, in a very large measure, if not entirely, direct and control the operation of this project. You could not expect it to be otherwise. Certainly, $45,000,000.00 is not going to be delivered to Commerce Oil Refining Corporation without security."

Incidentally, the Jamestown Protective Assn. has been made defendant in a suit instituted by the Commerce Oil Refining Corp., in which they are charged with a conspiracy to restrain interstate commerce. The association defends itself that "as free men under free governments, they (the association) have a right to organize and combine peacefully with other persons for the purpose of promoting their opinions more effectively. They have done; this they are doing; and this they will continue to do."

Geller said, in an address: "Resistance comes from organized minorities who have no needs for the jobs or economic stimulus, and, in fact, thrive better in a financially depressed atmosphere."

Robert S. Allen Reports ...

Burton May Retire

Washington, Sept. 5 — Justice Harold Burton is deliberating retiring from the Supreme Court.

That's what he is telling close friends. The 61-year-old Republican Mayor of Cleveland and Senator from Ohio will become eligible to retire in the Court's coming term—which starts October 7.

Next June, Burton reaches 70 and will have been a justice more than 10 years. Federal judges can go on the "inactive list" either at 65 with 15 years' service, or at 70 and 10 years on the bench.

Under the Constitution they receive full pay for life. Supreme Court justices now get $35,000 a year; the Chief Justice, $35,500.

While Burton's health is generally good and he considers himself capable of continuing to carry his share of the tribunal's work, one factor particularly is inclining him toward retiring.

This is the strong desire that his successor be named by President Eisenhower.

A Democrat put Burton on the bench, President Truman appointed him September 18, 1945, and he was confirmed the very next day by the Senate, where the two men had become warm friends.

Intimates of Burton are convinced this will be his last term as one of the Nine Old Men.

But there is no indication the two oldest of them are thinking of quitting.

Neither Justice Hugo Black, who is 72 and was appointed in 1937, nor Justice Felix Frankfurter, who is 76 and was named in 1939, have any intention of retiring. Both have been eligible to do so for some time, but are emphatic they have no thought of it.

Black, the first of the militant New Dealers put on the Court, was ill several years ago. He had an operation, and suffered from shingles. But the Alabamian is again in excellent health; carried a full workload throughout the last term; and has played vigorous tennis almost every day this summer.

Frankfurter continues to repeat to all and sundry his firm determination to emulate the late great Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, who remained on the bench until 90.

Note: It's not generally known, but the Supreme Court building has one of the pleasantest cafeterias in Washington. It's open to the public, the food is good, and the prices reasonable. Also it's rarely crowded because of being relatively unknown.

The unannounced directive states these men will be visited, "as often as necessary, but at least once every 30 days."

These special "military representatives" are being instituted in 16 countries—Britain, Belgium, Denmark, France, Greece, Libya, Luxembourg, Morocco, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Saudi Arabia, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

Last year, U. S. servicemen committed 14,394 offenses subject to foreign jurisdiction. The governments involved voluntarily waived legal authority in 9,614 of these cases. They were tried by American military courts.

Of the other cases, only 109 (less than 1 per cent) resulted in convictions and imprisonment of the U. S. servicemen.

Torch Songs Sicken

It seems to me that the predominant theme of today's popular music is lament for lost love.

Practically every time some crooner opens his mouth he starts bawling for the big one that got away.

She was his one and only love and he loves her still. He's carrying a torch as big as the Statue of Liberty.

All of this is pretty sickening to me, a graduate of the let'er-go-Joe school of romance, but I can't help wondering where all those girls went. The lyrics seldom say, leaving me to speculate whether the guy just got fed up with the guy and walked out, or somebody came along and grabbed her from under his nose. This can happen to anybody.

Just a short time ago, the theme of most popular songs was true and lasting love, all optimistic and happy, in a sloppy sort of way. They set a fellow up and gave him confidence in the grand old institution, because in those lyrics the girls were always faithful to the end. Now, it seems, they vanish at the drop of a hint from some other guys that they can do much better with them.

Since the same writers and singers pretty well monopolize the popular music field, it seems reasonable to assume they have been the victims of the very girls they need to write about and now sit staring at four walls and thinking gloomy thoughts, which they pass on to us lighter-hearted guys. They belong to the I-loved-you-so-but-you-took-off school.

Any man who carries a torch for a woman for very long is not only foolish but a little

Allentown Fair Plans Full Program

ALLENTOWN — Broadway goes rural this year. This Eastern Pennsylvania community's century-old agricultural exposition, the Greater Allentown Fair, will have a Times Square flavor for fair week, Sept. 15 through 21. The entire "Latin Quarter Revue," direct from the Latin Quarter in New York, will be presented as the nightly entertainment for grandstand audiences.

Never before has the Allentown Fair, with a record of 102 expositions during its 105-year-history, ever attempted such a gala show for the night-cap to such daytime events as harness horse races, big car auto races, livestock shows, farm and home product judging, "Farmerama" featuring country talent from granges and 4-H clubs, and a pageant of high school marching band from Eastern Pennsylvania.

Lou Walters, producer, will present the revue on an outdoor stage pitched on a fair's dirt race track. His show will be presented on a stage 40 by 80 feet set on the track in front of Allentown's 7,500-seat grandstand.

The show will make its outdoor debut on Monday night, Sept. 16, and continue nightly for the remainder of fair week. A canvas canopy protects the stage during inclement weather.

Farm Exhibits

While Broadway holds the nightly spotlight, the fair's traditional agricultural and horticultural phases will dominate the daytime schedules. Lehigh County Agricultural Society, sponsors of the fair, is providing thousands of dollars in premiums and prizes for exhibitors of livestock, poultry, farm, home and garden products, and additional thousands of dollars in prizes for horse and auto races.

Every state in the nation and several provinces in Canada are represented among the exhibitors who have sent entries for the scores of classifications in the various departments. Judging in all classes begins Tuesday morning, Sept. 17, when the exhibit halls, cattle barns, and judging rings will be opened to the public.

Tuesday, Sept. 17, marks the start of a three-day series of harness racing at the Allentown Fair under the jurisdiction of the Central Fair circuit of the United States Trotting Assn. More than $45,000 in race purses will be available for the 15 events to be contested over the half-mile tracks. Four stake races, each with purses ranging from $5,000 to $10,000, will be contested. Extra events will include flat running races by jockey-ridden horses.

Immediately after the sulkies and their three day meeting, a crew will move in to ready the dirt half-mile track for the big-car auto races scheduled for Saturday afternoon, Sept. 21. United States Automobile Club (USAC) sanction has been granted Allentown Fair to promote the races which will include a 50-lap feature on the speedway. Indianapolis drivers are included in the field of more than 30 racers in the sprint cars which are expected to respond to the starter's flag for the time trials beginning at 1 p.m.

New Building

A new farm building, with 20,000 square feet of exhibit space, will be dedicated in time for the fair opening. The new building, in addition to housing displays by granges from Eastern Pennsylvania vying for prize money offered to the finest displays, will also be the location for daily free band concerts.

Farm and youth organizations will present free shows in front of the grandstand Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings. The shows have been tab-

Second Day's Visit

Paris Holds Thrills For Tourist

EDITOR'S NOTE — David B. Ottaway, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Ottaway, Knottsville, N. Y., and Buck Hill Falls, is currently on tour of Europe. He has a report of special interest to high school and college students. Ottaway will enter Harvard this month. This is the 21st chapter in the European series.

By David B. Ottaway
PARIS, France—Our second day was spent in touring the city again with our friend, the American Express.

This company does a wonderful job in running tours of all the cities visited by the many American tourists.

In the morning we saw the so-called Modern Paris, highlighted by the Invalides, where the tombs of Napoleon and Marshall Foch rest, and the church of Sacre Coeur.

The tomb of Napoleon is tremendous, made out of Norwegian granite. This type of granite is so hard that it must be shaped by hand-rubbing of the surface.

It is close to the color of mahogany and really a beautiful piece of work. The whole of the inside of the Invalides is lighted in blue and yellow, achieved by daylight passing through stained glass windows. Very effective all in all.

Sacre Coeur is of interest since it is the only church in the world where the Holy Sacrament is left open all the time. Hence there is complete silence in the church even though crowds pass through it continually.

Kemp Kadets In Parade In Middletown

The corps will leave at noon for Middletown, N. Y. All members are expected to be at the post promptly at 11:30.

bed as the Farmerama.

Thirty bands from Eastern Pennsylvania high schools will participate in a marching pageant Friday afternoon. This will be followed by a two-hour rock-and-roll jamboree and a free dance for teenagers.

Vaudeville acts will be presented during the afternoons.

In our travels we crossed the Place de la Concorde, the biggest of its kind in Europe. Here it was that Marie Antoinette was guillotined. Ironically enough the inventor of the guillotine was killed by his own machine here, too!

From the Place there is a wonderful view up the Champs Elysees, one of the famous roads of Paris, to the Arc de Triomphe.

Trees line this road of fashion shops, and night clubs on either side of its broad width. On the other side of the Place are the Tuilleries Gardens and beyond them that treasure chest of art, the Louvre.

So here is quite a place and, the way the Parisians drive, worth your life to cross.

I believe one of Paris' greatest assets is the openness of its downtown area. Most all the streets are lovely and wide with frequent squares or circles to break up what otherwise might well be an unquarable labyrinth of roads.

Our morning tour was completed by a stop at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene built on the style of a Greek Temple with 52 Corinthian columns around its main part.

This is another of Napoleon's statues to himself by himself. The Church was a "Temple of Glory" to his Grand Army at first, but later he decided the Arc de Triomphe would be better for this purpose.

The city seemed to me full of monuments for Napoleon, usually built by him.

In the afternoon we continued our viewing of Paris, first, by a stop at the Louvre.

This is absolutely the longest art-filled edifice I visited this summer. Some of the high spots included Leonardo de Vinci's Mona Lisa, the Winged Victory of Samothrace, and a statue of Venus.

The Mona Lisa was all of what I had heard and expected it to be. They say it was even better before being covered with a glass case which takes away some of the natural beauty of La Joconde.

We couldn't possibly cover all the art in the Louvre, and though I spent another afternoon here, there is still much left to be seen.

I was surprised that there was so little of the impressionistic school of art. There were only a few paintings—each of such people as Garguin, Van Gogh and Lautree.

But their collection of the Italian Renaissance styles is quite extensive besides a lot of Roman and Greek sculpture. What a fabulous place! Then on to Sainte Chapelle, that jewel of Gothic architecture built in the 13th century to contain the Crown of Thorns and a section of the True Cross.

Now both are in Notre Dame church. The inside walls are covered with the Fleurs de Lis, and the stained glass windows from the 13th century are of the best.

The blues and reds are of a deep color. It seems that during this century the stained glass windows reached their height.

During the war they moved every block of these windows to hiding places in the chateau district, and only recently have they completed the huge task of replacing these windows.

From here we next visited Notre Dame. Probably the most interesting factor about this church was its construction.

It was the tallest of its type when first built, and everyone thought it would collapse under a strong wind.

So it is built with the walls going outward in sort of a triangular shape, and these walls are supported by flying buttresses.

The construction of the walls was done by making dirt ramps sloping up to the walls from the outside by which the workers could ascend.

Then as the sides became higher, this ramp was built up, too. A very interesting story in height of this particular method.

Shell Defused Atop Steeple

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP) — Policeman Gerhard Raebiger climbed the 82-foot steeple of a ruined Berlin church, defused two seven-inch artillery shells lodged there in World War II, and said proudly:

"It was the hardest job I've had in 12 years."

But his sweat is not over. A third shell has been discovered and needs removing for safety reasons.

Wages, Salaries

Of the total $22 billion dollars of personal income in Pennsylvania 16 billion is derived from wages and salaries. Other important sources are rent, profits and transfer payments, such as old age assistance.

In Pennsylvania, 44 per cent of all wage and salary payments were made by manufacturers. Manufacturing is more significant in the economy of Pennsylvania than statistics show it to be in the national economy. Only 35 per cent of all U. S. wages and salaries were from

New Store
Opens In East Borough

THE FRONTIER Department Store, located in the A. M. Price Building in East Stroudsburg, just across the inter-borough bridge, is the area's newest business establishment.

Owned and operated by Paul Arnold and Roy Swisher, the Frontier carries a full line of clothing and shoes for all members of the family. The store also has dry-cleaning facilities.

Arnold has over 35 years' experience in men's wear and custom tailoring, having been with Ray Arnold's Men's Store before Ray's retirement.

Swisher also has local business experience and was assistant manager with J. J. Newberry Co., Orr's Department Store, Montgomery Ward, and Freeman's Department Store in Phoenix, Ariz.

Since it opened last Friday, the Frontier has enjoyed a week of business beyond expectations, the owners said.

6,000-Man International Army Merely A Symbol

By J. M. ROBERTS
AP News Analyst

ONE of the world's most important experiments, sensational when it began, has been rocking along for months now without stirring up much attention.

It is the first international army ever organized to enforce peace, the United Nations Emergency Force, which for nine months has stood between Egypt and Israel. It is a very thin line with something less than 6,000 men. It is a symbol, rather than a force, that could effectively oppose another attack in force by either side.

16 1/2 Million Cost
U. N. members have contributed to the cost on the basis of their over-all annual contributions to the U. N., and so far have appropriated $16,500,000.

The force's record in the Middle East is so good that Secretary General Hammarskjöld is suggesting that the U. N. start studying the means of keeping such a group permanently available.

Scrap Iron
Prices Down

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5—A steel mill in the Pittsburgh region has purchased scrap iron at prices from $3 to $4 under those paid for similar grades a month ago, it was reported yesterday.

On the basis of this purchase, including the freight involved, leading Pittsburgh scrap brokers now quote buying prices of about 5 1/2¢ for No. 1 heavy melting, $4 for No. 2 and $4 1/2 for No. 2 bundles.

That would not mean, necessarily, a standing army, but it could. Or it could be a paper army, with plans all ready for immediate mobilization when needed. Hammarskjöld makes no detailed suggestion—he merely asks for a study.

The UNEF now operates on a very tenuous basis. It is positioned by the sufferance of the disputants. That sufferance was obtained through the pressure of public opinion as represented in the General Assembly.

It might not be possible to interpose such a force between larger powers, or in the case of an aggression deliberately begun for the purpose of taking territory.

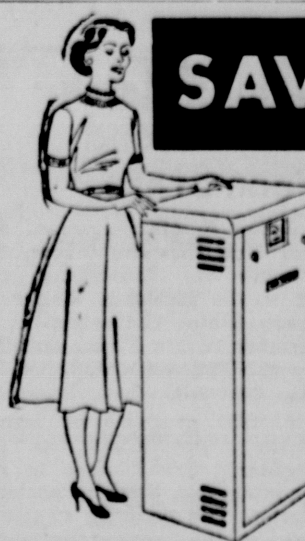

Its very availability would, however, confront any disputant with the necessity to accept or else be tagged a flouter of world opinion.

Refused Inspection
Russia accepted such a tag last fall rather than admit a U. N. inspection team into Hungary.

Since then she has been having troubles with her Communist apparatus throughout the world. It is not a tag to be accepted lightly. When the United Nations was organized it was thought that the great powers would eventually make peace and hand it to the U. N. to keep, with the aid of an international police force. Since no peace has been made, no permanent police force is possible in the sense that it would impose the U. N. will by force.

The emergency force, however, does give the assembly a means of presenting a physical symbol of its wishes.

HE'S TURTLE SOUP NOW—This turtle, described as about 20 inches across and weighing 10 to 15 pounds, wandered onto the lawn of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McCormick, 867 White St., yesterday. It's his next to last stop. After Les Carlton took the picture of the reptile, Frank Mader of 821 Thomas St., took it home and plans to serve it for dinner in the near future. The turtle was discovered by the McCormick's 3 1/2-year-old son, Albert Jr., who invited his mother to inspect the "big bug". Mrs. McCormick, concerned that the turtle might bite one of the children playing in the yard, was happy to see it depart. Where it came from nobody seems to know.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Life goes in cycles, but if you think you're coming back to the same place, time after time, you're in for a surprise. Something new has been added.

Take bridal showers. There is a time in your life when it seems that your principal social diversion is going to the bridal showers for your friends. You decorate umbrellas. You use Christmas tinsel from the spout of a decorated watering can. You tie the ribbon wrappings in a long string and pass it around among the guests to see who gets the end because she will be the next bride.

You think you know everything there is to know about bridal showers. And maybe you do, but if you were married more than ten years ago, you might be surprised at some of today's refinements on the old standby's.

Because you'll come the full cycle again, eventually, but then it's bridal showers for your children's friends, the same and yet so different.

For instance, they no longer unravel the beautiful bows which decorate the tops of packages. Instead, the ends of the bows are inserted through a hole in a paper pie plate, and the end product in all its rainbow colors is used in place of a bride's bouquet at the wedding rehearsal.

The straight string is still wound in traditional manner, around the guest of honor's engagement ring, and she passes it around a tight circle of guests, all with their hands behind them. A knot in the right hand means a boy, in the left hand a girl—or maybe it's the other way around.

And to cap the climax, some reporter records all the remarks the guest of honor makes as she opens the gifts and then reads them aloud to the full assemblage with everybody howling and screaming at the results.

You see, everytime you think you know it all, somebody has thought of something new.
